Danareksa Research Institute: January Outlook: Remaining Soft

The latest LEI data indicates sluggish growth in Indonesia's major trading partners, where the composite LEI slipped further in November by 0.5% mom after failing 0.4% mom in October. On the prices side, the average prices of Indonesia's major commodity exports increased for the 4th consecutive month. These indicate soft exports demand amid better commodity prices. Meanwhile, the average 3M IDR/USD appreciated 0.2% mom (+5.1%yoy) in December and the headline inflation rate was still benign. The stable IDR and inflation rate led to stable imports. Against this backdrop, we expect Indonesia's trade deficit of USD0.24bn in January 2020.

- Soft exports demand amid better commodity prices. The latest LEI data indicates sluggish growth in Indonesia's major trading partners. In November, the composite LEI slipped further by 0.5% mom after falling 0.4% mom in October. The LEI was down 2.7% mom for China and down 0.9% mom for Japan. In the US, however, the LEI climbed 2.4% mom. On the manufacturing side, the PMI for several of Indonesia's trading partners such as China and the US rebounded to above the threshold level of 50, signalling a modest improvement in manufacturing activity. Since the new orders received and production grew at a slower pace, we don't expect a significant increase in exports demand from Indonesia's trading partners in the near term. On the consumer side, the composite price index of Indonesia's trading partners fell from -0.6% mom to -1.1% mom, indicating further downward pressure. On the prices side, the average prices of Indonesia's major commodity exports increased for the 4th consecutive month. They rose 4.1% mom in December, following a 3.2% mom increase in the previous month. Rising prices have helped to sustain Indonesia's exports. Furthermore, volume shipments (mostly to China) are likely to be adversely affected on a monthly basis due to the Chinese New Year festivities.
- A stable rupiah coupled with surging oil prices led to stable imports. On the domestic side, the headline inflation rate was still benign. Following a 0.36% mom increase in December, consumer prices rose 0.38% in January. During the planting season the prices of foodstuffs accelerated, while prices in the transportation component fell due to the end of the year-end holidays. On the manufacturing side, Indonesia's manufacturing activity still contracted. The manufacturing PMI declined from 49.5 in December to 49.3 in January, owing to falling new orders, lower export sales, and weaker purchasing activity. This signals soft demand over the near term. The average 3M rupiah/USD exchange rate appreciated 0.2% mom (+5.1% yoy) in December after increasing by 0.41% mom in the previous month. Meanwhile, average prices in the global oil basket jumped 8.1% in December, following a 4.2% increase in November. Inline with the exports pattern, Indonesia's imports volume in November should be flat given the seasonal events.
- Against this backdrop, we expect Indonesia's exports to reach USD 13.54 bn in January 2020, with imports reaching USD 13.78 bn. This will translate into a trade deficit of USD 0.240 bn in January 2020.

Bad weather resulted in sluggish sales

The extreme weather and heavy rainfall which caused floods in many areas in Indonesia hit cement demand in Jan20. INTP booked cement sales of 1.30mn tons (-10%yoy and -20%mom) with sales sluggish in Java and Sumatra. Historically, sales in 1Q account for 23% of the full year sales, while sales in Jan contribute 8% of the full year sales and 35% of the 1Q sales. INTP's sales in Jan are 7% of our FY target. Maintain BUY.

Floods in the western part of Java dragged down INTP's Jan sales volume. The extreme weather in Jan and heavy rainfall which caused floods in many areas resulted in cement sales volume of 1.30mn tons for INTP, or -9.6%yoy and -20.1%mom. The sales volume in 6 selling regional areas recorded negative growth on both a yoy and mom basis. In Java, cement sales were -6.4%yoy. Most notably, sales were flat in Jakarta (+0.4%yoy), -10.7%yoy in Central Java and -4.1%yoy in West Java, INTP's main markets. Around 76% of INTP's turnover is in Java. Sales in Sumatra - which accounted for 9% of the sales -dropped 20.2%yoy. The Nusa Tenggara and Kalimantan markets accounted for 8% and 5% of the sales.

Soft sales in January owed to extreme weather. Nationwide, domestic cement sales in Jan 2020 reached only 5.20mn tons, or -7.4%yoy and -20.4%mom. Based on the area, only East Indonesia booked positive yearly sales at +25.5%yoy albeit -0.8%mom. However, sales in East Indonesia constituted only 4.0% of the national cement demand. Cement consumption in Java, the country's most populous island, was -9.9%yoy and -18.3%mom. Java accounted for 55% of the domestic demand. Furthermore, sales in Sumatra which accounted for 21% of the market were -8.9%yoy and -20.8%mom. Historically, sales in 1Q account for 23% of the FY sales, with Jan contributing ~8% to the FY sales or 36% of the 1Q sales.

Sales in Jan accounted for 7% of our target. We expect INTP to sell more cement this year than in 2019. Our 2020 cement target is set at 18.4mn tons, representing growth of 4%yoy, compared to the flattish growth in FY19 of +0.3%yoy. Historically, INTP's cement sales in 1Q are 23% of the full year sales with sales in Jan contributing 8% of the FY sales and 35% of the 1Q sales. INTP's sales in Jan are 7.1% of our FY20 target.

Maintain BUY. INTP maintained market share at ~25% in Jan20. The ratio is stable compared to the previous month (24.9%) and the previous year (25.6%). INTP is trading at EV/ton of USD147, below its -1SD historical EV/ton at USD155.

Semen Indonesia (SMGR IJ)

Supported by solid export sales

SMGR booked cement sales volume in Jan 20 of 3.36mn tons, or +34.5%yoy on the back of consolidation with SBI but -14.6%mom due to the extreme weather in Indonesia which caused floods in many areas. Domestic cement sales were down 6.2%yoy while exports jumped by 30.1%yoy. SMGR's domestic sales amounted to 55% of the national cement consumption. Its Jan 2020 sales are in-line with our forecast as they are 7.8% of our FY target.

Strong yearly sales growth thanks to consolidation with SBI. Semen Indonesia Group (SMGR) sold 3.36mn tons of cement in Jan 20. This includes sales of SBI and TLCC. The sales grew by +34.5%yoy thanks to consolidation with SBI. The SBI sales have been consolidated since Feb 19. However, on a monthly basis, the sales were down by 14.6%mom due to soft domestic sales and weak sales from TLCC. Sales from TLCC contributed ~5% of the group's sales.

Soft sales in the domestic market due to the bad weather. In the domestic market, the group sold 2.86mn tons of cement in Jan 20, accounting for 55.1% of the domestic consumption. This figure is -6.2%yoy and -17.6%mom which, we believe, reflects the impact of extreme weather and heavy rainfall that caused flooding in many areas in Jan 2020. SMGR recorded strong export performance, by comparison. Exports in Jan 20 reached 0.32mn tons, or up by 30.1%yoy and 47.2%mom.

SMGR's Jan sales are in-line with our expectation. Historically, SMGR's sales in 1Q are 33% of the full year figure, with sales in Jan reaching 21.4% of the 1Q result and 7.1% of the full year number. The sales in Jan 20 are 7.8% of our FY target of 43.0mn tons (+1%yoy). We expect normalizing and drier weather in the coming months to support cement sales.

The bad weather hit sector sales in Jan 20. Domestic cement consumption in Jan 20 reached 5.20mn tons, or -7.5%yoy and -20.5%mom hit by extreme weather. Based on sales area, only Eastern Indonesia booked positive yearly growth of +25.5%yoy, while other regions booked negative growth. However, consumption in Eastern Indonesia accounted for only 4% of the domestic market. By contrast, sales in Java, the biggest market, dropped by 9.6%yoy, while Sumatra sales were down by 10.5%yoy. Both areas contributed ~75% of the market turnover.

Maintain BUY. SMGR is traded at EV/ton of USD129, below its historical avg. of USD138. SMGR's EV/ton is also lower than INTP's USD147, but higher than SBI's USD79.
